

Marijo Murillo

Graphic designer

E-mail: marijomurillo@internet.is

Marijo Murillo is a Spanish graphic designer and illustrator who has been working for more than 20 years in different graphic and art studios in Madrid. Among others she specialized in corporate images and the design of catalogues and books for the prestigious museums and galleries in Madrid, Spain. In 1996 she joined the studio of the renowned Spanish designer Roberto Turegano (creator of the image for 'Madrid, European Capital of Culture' or the Spanish Pavilion for the Universal Exposition in Aichi, EXPO 2005). In the last years she has been working as freelance, designing for example the logo for the geochemical society (www.geochemsoc.org). Apart from design and illustration, she also dedicates herself to painting (<http://www4.mmedia.is/murillo>).